The Book of Grays Lamon Lindsay

Lamon Lindsay and Kieth Hudson have come up with solutions to help kids deal with peer pressure: teaching them at an early age how to approach life's problems, make decisions, and stand by them; showing them how to become leader's instead of followers; convincing them that listening to their parents comes before listening to the streets. Kids are not born with negative behavior. They learn negative behavior from peers, the streets, and in our schools. Schools are supposed to be a place of learning, so we might as well teach them properly. This is what the book Dosomething Think First does. How can our kids deal with peer pressure when they've never been taught how? Now with the first and the only book of its kind, there's help and a solution for our kids. If we don't start a change now, it will only get worse.
