Computer Programming and Architecture: The Vax Henry Levy, Richard Eckhouse

Takes a unique systems approach to programming and architecture of the VAX

Using the VAX as a detailed example, the first half of this book offers a complete course in assembly language programming. The second describes higher-level systems issues in computer architecture. Highlights include the VAX assembler and debugger, other modern architectures such as RISCs, multiprocessing and parallel computing, microprogramming, caches and translation buffers, and an appendix on the Berkeley UNIX assembler.
