I Am Not Too Young To Learn Something About Money! Patricia Lalande

I Am Not Too Young to Learn About Money! teaches young people, ages 8 and up, the ABC's of managing their own money, even small amounts, and helps them to make this knowledge their own to use. They are shown step-by step how and why to develop the habit of saving for the future, how to figure and save 10% of their money, even how one million dollars can be accumulated in forty years.

Using simple, understandable terms, this book encourages young ones to consider attitudes and personal qualities needed to manage their money well and not spend every penny that passes through their hands. Delightful illustrations make the book enjoyable and easy to understand.

Parents are often at a loss as to what to teach their children about money. The books' new approach to a time-honored method of money management is presented in a way that young ones can grasp and use, even for a lifetime. This beginner book is a tremendous help to motivate and empower young ones to respect money and experience the satisfaction of handling it well.

I Am Not Too Young to Learn About Money! helps fill the current void in children's education on the topic of money management. As this book says: "As long as there is money in the world, it is a good idea to know something about it."
