Drawing faces became my passion as a 5 year old, and nothing else kept my attention until 2013. That year marked the discovery of using art to worship God, and sharing the pictures He gives me with others. Art is my worship, prayer, and playground that I invite others to join in experiencing God's freedom. I travel to paint at conferences and live events, in healing rooms and encounter tents, most Sundays at Creekside Ministries (while singing at the top of my lungs, with music pounding my chest as I slap paint on my board), and alone in my studio with one-on-one devotional time with God. That private Holy Spirit time is important, to constantly refill so what I paint outside the studio comes from the overflow. The year 2015 brought significant change for my whole family. Following our passions through the doors God opened, we moved to a new city, new church, new opportunities, new ideas. This is a sampling of the pictures God gave me since stepping out in risk. All images were created amongst a body of believers at live Creekside Ministries worship events, conferences, and healing rooms.
